There has been a show of support for a united Europe in around 60 cities across the EU.

Thousands turned out to highlight their common values from Frankfurt in Germany to Bath in the UK.

The rallies were organised on social media by a group calling itself Pulse of Europe:<http://pulseofeuropa.eu/?lang=en> .

The group says it isn't tied to any particular political party

The protests began last year as an attempt to counter growing nationalist sentiment on the continent, often expressed in opposition to the European Union.
