Iran's Ministry of Foreign Affairs has condemned a number of Armenian media outlets for actions for personal gain.

The Iranian Foreign Minister's spokesman, Bahram Qasemi, told APA's Teheran correspondent that there were no changes in Iran's position on the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict.

"We condemn the Armenian media for actions for personal gain. Over the past few days, a number of Armenian media outlets have again resorted to wrong actions. These steps by the Armenian media have caused concern among experts with the Iranian Foreign Ministry, he noted.

Iran is one of the first countries to declare its readiness to provide assistance in resolving the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict, said the spokesman, adding. Iran also has good relations with Azerbaijan and is interested to develop these relations further.
