ARMINFO, October 4, 2018

Marianna Mkrtchyan. The Catholicos of the Great House of Cilicia, Aram I, is concerned about recent events in Armenia. "The Diaspora cannot be indifferent and passive to these events, as it is an integral part of Armenia, and it cannot be indifferent to the challenges that the country faces," said Aram I.

According to him, the interests of the motherland should be above personal or party benefits. The Catholicos of the Great House of Cilicia expressed the conviction that the Motherland should be kept away from shocks and dangers at all costs and through mutual compromises.

Aram I also urged to abandon the current policy of intolerance and mutual distrust, replacing it with mutual love, tolerance and respect, and abandon the approaches that divide society into different camps.

He urged everyone to move along the path of love and law, on the basis of mutual respect and understanding, putting the security of the country above all.
