An Arab newspaper reported, on Sunday, that the danger of the Islamic State has recently started to increase in the vicinity of some Iraqi provinces. It also affirmed the need to boost the intelligence efforts.

The newspaper quoted an official source as saying that the danger of the Islamic State organization has begun to increase recently in the vicinity and within some cities in Baghdad, Nineveh, Kirkuk and Salahuddin.

He also added that this danger requires a quick review of the plans made for the areas that witness security deterioration, especially Baghdad, south and west of Nineveh and south of Kirkuk.

Furthermore, the source affirmed the need to boost the Iraqi intelligence efforts, in addition to conducting wide-scale military operations, in order to destroy the hideouts of the IS militants.

Rapid action has been taken to prevent the expansion of the terrorist organization in the liberated areas again, he explained.

It is noteworthy that Leader of the National Coalition, Iyad Allawi called, on Friday, to find real solutions and strategies to confront what he called the third generation of terrorism.
