Slovenia's President Borut Pahor on Wednesday confirmed that he would attend the 6th edition of regular Trilateral Meetings of the presidents of Croatia, Slovenia and Austria that will be held in Šibenik next Wednesday, Slovenia's media have reported.

These regular trilateral meetings are aimed at strengthening relations and cooperation in a narrower regional format and the current theme of the meeting in Šibenik will be the future of the European Union particularly in light of the recent European election and other European and international topics, Pahor's office said in a press release.

Presidents Pahor, Alexander Van der Bellen and Kolinda Grabar-Kitarović will put a special emphasis to the strengthening of friendly relations between neighbouring countries and Southeast Europe. In that regard they will discuss the continuation of European prospects for countries in the Western Balkans and about migrations, says the press release issued in Ljubljana.
