During meetings, EU delegation to exchange views on all aspects of Turkish-EU relations, cooperation on migration issues.

On Friday an EU delegation will pay a working visit to Ankara focused on Turkey-EU relations and migration, according to Turkey's Foreign Ministry.

During meetings in the capital Ankara, Margaritis Schinas, European Commission vice-president and commissioner for protecting the European way of life, and Ylva Johansson, commissioner for home affairs, will exchange views on all aspects of Turkish-EU relations and cooperation on migration issues, the ministry said in a statement on Thursday.

"Schinas and Johansson paying their first official visits within the context of their new tenures to Turkey, an EU candidate country, confirms the importance EU places on close relations and cooperation with our country, especially on migration and security issues," it added.
