UN chief says international community must help to achieve peace in Afghanistan and aid refugees in Pakistan and Iran.

The United Nations has thrown its weight behind a peace process aimed at ending almost 20 years of devastating war in Afghanistan, with Secretary-General Antonio Guterres calling it an opportunity that "cannot" be missed.

Guterres was speaking at a high-level international summit in Pakistan's capital, Islamabad, held on Monday to mark 40 years of Afghanistan's southeastern neighbour hosting millions of refugees from armed conflict.
