The Manila Times (15 April 2020)

Chinese President Xi Jinping exchanged congratulatory messages on Monday with his Indonesian counterpart, Joko Widodo, on the 70th anniversary of the establishment of China-Indonesia diplomatic relations.

Noting that the friendly exchanges between China and Indonesia boast a long history, Xi said bilateral relations had made great progress since the establishment of diplomatic ties.

In recent years, in particular, Xi said, the two countries had continuously lifted their relations, expanded the areas of cooperation, achieved fruitful results from Belt and Road cooperation, and worked closely on international and regional affairs, bringing benefits to the two peoples and contributing to regional and global prosperity and stability.
