The United States Special Representative for Afghanistan Reconciliation Zalmay Khalilzad and CEO of the United States International Development Finance Corporation (DFC) Adam Boehler will visit Uzbekistan from Monday to Wednesday, the Uzbek Foreign Ministry said Monday.

The two sides will discuss issues related to supporting the peace negotiations in Uzbekistan's neighboring country Afghanistan, as well as prospects for attracting DFC funds for investment projects in Uzbekistan, the ministry said.

The U.S. delegation will also hold talks with members of the Senate of the Oliy Majlis, the upper chamber of the Uzbek parliament, as well as Uzbek ministers of foreign affairs, to discuss investment and foreign trade, economic development and poverty reduction, it said.

The U.S. officials will also take part in the ministerial meeting in the format of "Central Asia - USA" (C5 + 1), which will be held online on Tuesday.
