In a Bastille Day interview with French media on Tuesday (14 July), President Emmanuel Macron detailed his economic orientation for the final two years of his five-year term. EURACTIV's media partner Ouest-France reports.

A €100 billion recovery plan

Macron wants to revive the economy as soon as the school year starts, for which he has announced a plan of at least 100 billion, in addition to the 100 billion already allocated to deal with the coronavirus pandemic.
