The EU top Brexit negotiator has told ambassadors that the UK's latest offer on fishing is unacceptable. Trade talks could drag on into next year, senior diplomats have admitted.

EU chief negotiator Michel Barnier said Tuesday he was making a "final push" to strike a Brexit trade deal with Britain even as diplomats admitted privately that talks could drag on into next year.

The UK will leave the bloc's single market and customs union on December 31, meaning its current free trade arrangements expire.
