Daily Sabah (24 December 2020)

More than 1,000 migrants from Asia, the Middle East and North Africa were left to sleep in the cold after their camp in northwestern Bosnia-Herzegovina burned down amid a dispute among Bosnian politicians over where to house them.

On Wednesday, a fire destroyed the camp in Lipa housing about 1,200 people. Police and United Nations officials have said the blaze was probably started by migrants unhappy at the temporary closure of the camp, scheduled for the same day, and uncertainty about where they would be relocated in Bosnia-Herzegovina.
