Following the alleged non-paper on changes of the borders in the Balkans, which caused much controversy in the region, Kosovo daily Koha published another document on solving the Serbia-Kosovo dispute, which the daily claimed was a joint initiative of Germany and France, but which was denied by the two countries Embassies to Kosovo. The alleged document is much more in line with the aim of a comprehensive normalisation of relations envisaged in the EUs General Framework for negotiations with Serbia.

According to Koha, the document says that Serbian President Aleksandar Vučić and Kosovo Prime Minister Albin Kurti will conduct talks to finalize the agreement to normalise relations and should complete the process by the end of February 2022, N1 reports. A meeting in Paris in June 2021 is also envisaged.
