While Croatia has now been given the green light to start preparing to mint Euro coins ahead of its entry into the single currency, Eurozone bigwigs in Brussels have told the Balkan nation that the ambitious timeline the government has set itself won't mean corners can be cut.

The Vice-President of the European Commission Valdis Dombrovskis, who is also responsible for the work on deepening the Economic and Monetary Union and strengthening the international role of the Euro was clear on the Balkan country having to meet all the criteria.
