The European Union (EU) has expressed concerns over the situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina as the nation drifts towards disintegration, and called for peace and stability in the multi-ethnic country, Josep Borrell, the EU high representative for foreign affairs and security policy, said on Wednesday.

"I am expressing my concerns for the situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina, last days we have seen tensions and some attempts to try to undo 26 years of peace and stability. We remain committed to the unity of Bosnia and Herzegovina as a single country," Borell said on arrival for the NATO foreign affairs ministerial meeting in Riga, Latvia on Wednesday.
