The Trans Adriatic Pipeline AG on March 17 announced that it had transported a total of 10 billion cubic meters of natural gas from Azerbaijan to Europe through the Kipoi interconnection point located at the Greek-Turkish border. It is also the same point where TAP connects to the Trans Anatolian Pipeline (TANAP). Currently, 8.5 out of the 10 bcm have been delivered to Italy.

"10 bcm is a symbolic but an important milestone. A little over a year after the start of commercial operations, we have provided efficient, reliable, and continuous transportation services to our shippers, making an important contribution to Europe's energy security and supply diversification. We are currently able to reach the full transport capacity of 10 bcm per year. On top of this, we can add further capacity via short-term auctions," said Luca Schieppati, TAP Managing Director.
