European Commission Vice-President Margaritis Schinas stated that Greece can play a role in bolstering Europes security and act as an energy gateway that will help reduce the continents dependency on Russian oil and gas, through the countrys developing LNG infrastructure, during the opening of the first Greek house in Davos on Sunday.

We are witnessing a period of major tectonic geopolitical change, said Schinas, adding that there is now a less naive, geopolitical Europe that is slowly but surely increasingly taking on responsibility for security, economy and resilience.
