Chinese State Councilor and Foreign Minister Wang Yi is scheduled to attend the third "China+Central Asia" (C+C5) Foreign Ministers' Meeting in Kazakhstan and pay an official visit to the country from June 6 to 9.

Zhao Lijian, spokesperson of the Chinese Foreign Ministry, made the announcement on Monday, noting that Wang was invited by Kazakh Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Mukhtar Tileuberdi.

This meeting is regular, which will inherit traditional friendship between China and Central Asia and is expected to boost bilateral and multilateral cooperation on energy, trade, regional security, food security and various other fields against the backdrop of the ongoing Russia-Ukraine conflict, Zhu Yongbiao, director of the Center for Afghanistan Studies in Lanzhou University, told the Global Times on Monday.
