Georgians staged a new mass rally Sunday demanding that the government resign over its failure to formally secure candidacy for membership of the European Union.

The Black Sea nation has been in the grip of mass protests since EU leaders decided in late June to defer Tbilisi's application for membership, pending sweeping political reforms.

The biggest demonstrations in decades, which saw at least 120,000 people take to the streets June 20, are being organized by leading pro-democracy groups and supported by opposition parties.
