In an op-ed piece for the Boston Herald, the former President of Serbia, Boris Tadic, said that the conflict over Ukraine is the sign of inconsistency which is at the heart of Western foreign policy, because when it comes to Ukraine the West's position is that territorial integrity is sacrosanct, while this rule does not apply for the other nations, such as Serbia,

Tadic also wrote that the dual standards were established officially back in 2010 when the International Court of Justice failed to provide a non-binding advisory opinion on whether Kosovo's unilateral declaration of independence is in accordance with international law.
