After the recent spike in tensions in northern Kosovo, Aleksandar Vucic and Albin Kurti are to meet in the third week of August in Brussels – though few expect any progress.

Serbian President Aleksandar Vucic and Kosovo Prime Minister Albin Kurti will meet in Brussels on August 18, it was confirmed to BIRN, following the recent escalation of tensions in northern Kosovo.

Perparim Kryeziu, Kurtis spokesperson, told BIRN on Wednesday that an earlier meeting scheduled for July 19 had failed because Belgrade refused it, requesting its postponement for more than one month.
