Bulgaria does not have many surplus weapons, not to mention that it does not have many serviceable weapons. If we had, the army would not face such difficulties. We have a serious problem with the maintenance of the equipment and a large percentage of it is faulty. I don't see what we can give out of the serviceable equipment we have. This will impair our capabilities, Defense Minister Dimitar Stoyanov told Nova TV regarding Bulgarias possible military aid to Ukraine.

And asked:

"If we donate it, how will we fulfill our national security obligations?".
