Iran's Revolutionary Guards (IRGC) has launched a large-scale military drill in the northwestern region of Aras along the borders of Armenia and Azerbaijan.

The IRGC on Monday kicked off its three-day military exercise -- codenamed IRGC Ground Forces Might -- in areas striding the northern sectors of East Azarbaijan and Ardabil provinces.

IRGC Ground Force Commander Brigadier-General Mohammad Pakpour said the war game is part of an annual routine aimed at boosting the forces combat preparedness.
