Greek Prime Minister Kyriakos Mitsotakis, right, speaks during a parliamentary debate on a motion of censure in Athens, on Friday, Jan. 27, 2023. Greeces main opposition leader has slammed the countrys prime minister as a danger to the nation for his role in a wiretapping scandal that has stung the government in the runup to elections to be held later this year.

Greeces main opposition party said Tuesday that it wont participate in parliamentary votes until a general election is held later this year, in response to the alleged wiretapping of senior officials by the state intelligence service.

We will not legitimize the legislative work of a government that is demonstrably ... deviating from democracy, opposition leader Alexis Tsipras, who heads the left-wing Syriza party, told reporters.
