
LAVROV: MOLDOVA COULD BE THE NEXT UKRAINE

- 03.02.2023

Novinite (2 February 2023)

Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov again threatened Chisinau, saying that "the West has already set its sights on the Republic of Moldova to play the role of the next Ukraine" and that Maia Sandu "is ready, practically, for almost anything, including an alliance with Romania", reported the "Romania Journal", quoting the Moldovan television TVR.

"Now Moldova is being considered for this role. First of all, because they managed to put at the head of the country a president through quite specific methods, far from being freely democratic, a president who wants to join NATO, has Romanian citizenship, is ready to unite with Romania and, in general, she is ready for almost anything," says Lavrov in an interview with Rossiya 24 TV and RIA.
