
KAZAKHSTAN BEGAN TO SUPPLY VEGETABLE OIL TO TAJIKISTAN MORE THAN RUSSIA

- 22.09.2023

Kabar (22 September 2023)

In 2022, Kazakhstan accounted for 70% of Tajikistan's vegetable oil imports, surpassing Russia, Centralasianlight.org reported.

Moreover, under certain conditions, Kazakhstan has the potential to fully supply Central Asian countries with sunflower oil. This was announced by the Chairman of the Board of the National Association of Oilseed Processors (NAOP) of Kazakhstan, Yadikar Ibragimov, in Dushanbe.

During the V Consultative Meeting of Central Asian Leaders held in the capital of Tajikistan, Expo Central Asia 2023 showcased Kazakhstani oil and fat products to the heads of Central Asian states. It was revealed during the exhibition that sunflower oil production has doubled in Kazakhstan over the last two seasons.
