The three main principles have been agreed upon which can contribute to the establishment of peace and the normalization of relations with Azerbaijan. Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan stated this during the debates on the draft 2024 state budget at the joint meeting of parliamentary standing committees in the National Assembly of Armenia Monday.

According to him, if the two parties follow those principles, the signing of a peace treaty between them will become real.

"The first principle is that Armenia and Azerbaijan must recognize each other's territorial integrity. What is more, with the understanding that the territory of Armenia comprises 29,800 square kilometers, and that of Azerbaijan—86,600," Pashinyan added.
