The Diplomat (30 November 2023)

By Valbona Zeneli

With similar concerns on both sides of the Atlantic, there are six main factors that will define whether we see a policy convergence on China.

Chinas global ambitions and reach are stimulating debates about new forms of strategic competition, rising to the top of the transatlantic economic and security agenda. The United States stressed its strategic competition with China in its 2022 National Security Strategy, warning that China harbors the intention, and increasingly, the capacity to reshape the international order in favor of one that tilts the global playing field to its benefit. The United States remains committed to managing the competition responsibly, the strategy added.
