Daily Sabah (6 December 2023)

Months after the liberation of the sovereign territory of Karabakh, the Azerbaijani president on Wednesday said his country seeks strong assurances that archrival Armenia will not try to seek "revenge" or attempt to reoccupy land in the region.

"We need firm, verified guarantees that there will be no attempt at revanchism in Armenia. Why we need it, because we know what's happening in Armenia, and also we know that Armenia has very bad advisers in some European capitals," Ilham Aliyev said during an international forum in the capital Baku.

Saying that he need not mention the capitals he is referring to, as it is obvious, Aliyev argued Armenia has so far received "provocative advice" but that in the future it might even get "destructive advice."
