AKIPRESS (20 December 2023)

President of Uzbekistan Shavkat Mirziyoyev signed a constitutional law on the transition to a mixed electoral system (combined majoritarian and proportional representation). The document was published in the newspaper "Khalq Suzi".

Until now, Uzbekistan used a majoritarian electoral system, when candidates who received a majority of votes in their constituency were considered elected. All candidates had to represent parties operating in the country.

Voting takes place according to party lists in a proportional system. The results are determined by the principle of distributing seats in proportion to the number of votes received by each party.
