BBC News (24 January 2024)

Turkish MPs have ratified Sweden's bid to join NATO in a long-delayed vote that represents a big step forward on the Nordic nation's path to membership.

Sweden applied to join in 2022 after Russia's full-scale invasion of Ukraine, but Türkiye withheld approval amid a row over what it called Sweden's support to Kurdish separatists.

Turkish President Erdogan is expected to sign the legislation within days.
