According to the Georgian prime minister, his country and Armenia have been working on the agreement in recent months

Georgia and Armenia have signed a strategic partnership agreement, according to Georgian Prime Minister Irakly Garibashvili.

"Traditionally, historically, we [with Armenia] are very close allies and friends, not mere neighbors. We have good partnership, relations and develop cooperation in all areas. As a matter of fact, we have always been strategic friends and partners. But today, this reality was committed to paper and today we signed an official agreement on strategic partnership," he told a briefing after talks with his Armenian counterpart, Nikol Pashinyan.
