'Our interest in the co-design and co-production of the seven advanced Constellation-class frigates in Greek shipyards,' says Defense Minister Nikos Dendias.

Greece is considering taking part in the Constellation-class frigate program of the US Navy, the country's Defense Minister Nikos Dendias announced on Monday.

Dendias said at a press conference following his meeting with Vasilis Palmas, the Greek Cypriot administration's defense minister, that the country is in talks with the US about joining the program.
