Uzbek president Mirziyoyev hopes that a new BYD plant in his country will before long be able to produce 300,000 cars per year.

After wrapping up the political section of his recent working trip to China, Uzbekistans President Shavkat Mirziyoyev took the long way home from Beijing by passing through the southern city of Shenzhen.

He traveled there to visit the headquarters of leading Chinese automaker BYD, which has just overtaken Elon Musks Tesla as the worlds best-seller of electric vehicles.
