Kabar (2 February 2024)

The strategic role of the International Seaport of Turkmenbashi as a key maritime hub for Central Asia, facilitating the connection between Europe and the region, is being highlighted by Deputy Chairman of the Turkmenhovayollary Agency, Seyitguly Bayseyidov. He made these remarks during an Investors Forum in Brussels, centralasianlight.org reported.

The development of the Europe-Caucasus-Asia International Transport Corridor (TRACECA) significantly elevated Turkmenistan's maritime transport sector. With the advancement of TRACECA, the International Seaport of Turkmenbashi has gained new opportunities and attractiveness, contributing to economic growth and increased trade efficiency, added Bayseyidov.

Bayseyidov emphasized that the International Seaport of Turkmenbashi boasts the most modern infrastructure, with the government investing $1.5 billion. Equipped with state-of-the-art terminals, the seaport can handle 17 million tons of cargo, ensuring efficient cargo processing and logistics services through terminals such as general cargo, bulk cargo, container, Ro-Ro, passenger, and a terminal for polypropylene and other chemicals.
