The French far-right are coming to Brussels.

France's National Rally is set to make large gains in the upcoming European election and within Marine Le Pen's party, officials are strategizing on how to make the most of their new might.

The National Rally is currently ranking first in the French polls and, according to POLITICO's Poll of Polls, its Identity and Democracy (ID) parliamentary group is forecast to win 87 seats in the June election, 28 more than it currently has.
