Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov underscored heightened tensions between Russia and Armenia on Thursday when he accused Prime Minister Nikol Pashinians government of ruining bilateral relations.

I already had to comment on the current situation regarding Armenia; it of course does not inspire optimism, he told the Moscow daily Izvestia. Frankly, the Armenian leadership, under far-fetched pretexts, distorting the history of the last three or three and a half years, is deliberately leading things to the collapse of relations with the Russian Federation.

Lavrov decried the Armenian leaders defamation of Russian soldiers and border guards deployed in Armenia as well as the Collective Security Treaty Organization (CSTO).
