CHINA'S REVISED STATE SECRETS LAW HAS COME INTO FORCE. HERE'S WHAT TO KNOW

- 02.05.2024

Al Jazeera (1 May 2024)

A revised state secrets law has come into force in China, prompting Taiwan to warn its citizens against travelling to China and rattling foreign companies amid fears the legislation could be used to punish regular business activities.

The changes to the Law on the Guarding of State Secrets, enacted on Wednesday, come as President Xi Jinping's government steps up the focus on national security, including by updating China's anti-espionage law and increasing the scrutiny of firms with foreign ties.
