Serbia, the US and the EU all condemned the closure by police of Serbian-run post offices in the north of Kosovo, with Serbia's president appealing to Brussels to take action.

Serbian President Aleksandar Vucic accused Kosovo Prime Minister Albin Kurti of attempting to spark conflict after Kosovo Police on Monday closed nine post offices run by Posta Srbije (Serbian Post) in the Serb-majority north of Kosovo.

The post office closures were part of the Pristina authorities continuing efforts to establish official control over the Serb-majority north.
