BBC News (10 October 2024)

Russian missiles have hit a civilian container ship at a port in Ukraine's Odesa region, killing seven people, according to local officials.

"This is the third attack on a civilian vessel in the past four days," said the region's governor, Oleh Kiper.

He said Russia had targeted port infrastructure and all the victims were Ukrainian. Several others were wounded, and a port employee died of his injuries in hospital on Thursday, Kiper added.
