While Yerevan has shown its willingness for peace by putting forth such proposals, Armenia is aware that these proposals will not be accepted, says President Ilham Aliyev.

Azerbaijani President Ilham Aliyev on Monday turned down Armenia's proposal to sign a peace deal based on only previously agreed-upon principles, calling it "unrealistic."

During a ceremony in Baku where he accepted the credentials of Belgium's newly-appointed ambassador to the country, Aliyev said that the Armenian government's proposal to sign such a deal with provisions that have yet to be agreed upon is unprecedented, according to an Azerbaijani presidential statement.
