Armenian Parliament Speaker Alen Simonian has indicated that discussions on regional unblocking between Yerevan and Baku may continue in a bilateral format, potentially excluding Russia.

Everything is possible. We are moving bilaterally, making small, very small steps towards a positive result, and everything is possible, he stated in parliament on Monday, but provided no further details.

On Friday, Armenian Deputy Prime Minister Mher Grigorian and Azerbaijani Deputy Prime Minister Shahin Mustafayev met primarily to address border delimitation and demarcation, but also touched upon transport links, according to an official press release by the Armenian government.
