The transition to the system of the state people has begun in Armenia. This statement was made by the Prime Minister of the Republic Nikol Pashinyan in his Telegram channel.

This is how he explained the government's decision-making system after the "barbecue revolution" of 2018. According to Pashinyan, before that, the actions of the Armenian political leadership were dependent on "the role of subjects of several empires."

This is a transition from systems of a stateless nation to a system of a state people.
