Europe enters a pivotal week for the future of its security □ after a summit in London that delivered plenty of promises but few concrete answers.

A group of world leaders □□□□□□□□ Volodymyr Zelenskyy of Ukraine but not U.S. President Donald Trump □□□□□□ Sunday afternoon in the palatial surroundings of the U.K. capital's Lancaster House chewing over the history-changing question of whether America is still at the heart of the western defense alliance.

There was a renewed sense of urgency to safeguard the continents collective security after the shocking scenes witnessed in Washington on Friday, according to one European diplomat close to the discussions.
