Singapore's Prime Minister Lawrence Wong has arrived in Beijing. At the invitation of Chinese Premier Li Qiang, Lawrence Wong is paying an official visit to China from Sunday to Thursday. During his stay, Chinese President Xi Jinping will meet with him, Premier Li Qiang and the country's top legislator Zhao Leji will hold talks and meet with him respectively. The two sides will have in-depth exchanges of views on China-Singapore ties as well as international and regional issues of mutual interest. This is Prime Minister Lawrence Wong's first visit to a non-ASEAN country since he took office in May.

This year marks the 35th anniversary of the establishment of bilateral ties between China and Singapore. (...)
