Turkic Investment Fund hopes to contribute to hard infrastructure projects across Middle Corridor in the long run, Baghdad Amreyev, President of TIF, said as he was addressing the Global Transport Connectivity Forum held in Istanbul, Trend reports.

He stated that the Middle Corridor is evolving into a central trade route, with regional governments increasing investment in transport and logistics infrastructure. He emphasized that these national efforts must be integrated into regional coordination and broader international cooperation to ensure the route becomes a more stable and competitive option for global cross-border trade.

Highlighting the strategic directions of TIF, Baghdad Amreyev noted that supporting economic integration and connectivity of Turkic states is regarded as a core objective of the Fund. He said that in the coming years, the TIF will focus on co-financing opportunities and promoting partnerships with both public and private actors to contribute to the regional connectivity efforts.
