The Kremlin has voiced its disappointment over Azerbaijan's decision to cancel all cultural events linked to Russia, including concerts, festivals, performances, and exhibitions organized by Russian state and private institutions.

We deeply regret such decisions. It is important to continue working on explaining the reasons and nature of those events that, in the view of the Azerbaijani side, led to such démarches, Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said, News.Az reports, citing local media.

Peskov emphasised that anything related to the work of Russian law enforcement agencies cannot and should not be interpreted as grounds for such a reaction.
