Outgoing US ambassador to Tbilisi Robin Dunnigan says the ruling Georgian Dream party leadership sent a private letter to the Trump administration that was threatening, insulting, unserious, and was received extremely poorly in Washington.

In an interview with RFE/RLs Georgian Service in Tbilisi on July 3, Dunnigan laid bare how ties between the two countries have continued to deteriorate since Donald Trump replaced Joe Biden as US President.

Georgia, once a close US ally, has angered Washington with a perceived tilt toward Russia and a violent crackdown on dissent.
