Türkiye and Armenia reiterated their determination to pursue normalization of ties without preconditions and agreed to speed up the process to open border crossings between the two neighbors, as special representatives for the normalization process as they met for the sixth round of talks on Friday.

During the meeting in Armenias capital, Yerevan, Türkiye's special envoy Serdar Kılıç and his Armenian counterpart Ruben Rubinyan confirmed the issues agreed upon in their previous discussions, which aimed to advance the full normalization process between the two countries.

They exchanged views on the implementation of the agreement on border crossings, which was reached at a meeting in July 2022.
