Russia remains one of Tajikistan's leading foreign trade partners, President Vladimir Putin said at a briefing following talks with Tajikistan's President Emomali Rahmon in Dushanbe, Trend reports.

According to the Russian leader, trade turnover between the countries exceeded $1.5 billion in 2024, increasing by more than 7 percent compared to the previous year. Growth continues this year and has already reached 17.3 percent.

Russia is one of the leading investors in the Tajik economy. There are over 300 enterprises with Russian participation operating in the republic, and the total volume of Russian capital investments exceeds $500 million, Putin noted.
